RESEARCH METHOD

Approach and Type of the Research

Approach of the Research has applied qualitative approach. It means that the data collected is not in figures, but it has obtained from interview notes, field notes, personal documentation, memos, and other legal documentation. So that, this qualitative research aims to figure out an empirical reality behind the phenomena happened more deeply, in detail and clear. Therefore, applying qualitative approach is to correspond between empirical reality with the applicable theory using descriptive method.

According to McMillan & Schumacher (in Seojono 2012): Qualitative research is an approach of investigation approach because the researcher has gathered the data by direct face to face meeting and interaction with the people on the research location. This research is descriptive one which is the study describing real circumstances about the object studied, and based on the real condition when the research is on going. According to Sugiyono (2009:21) descriptive method is a method applied to figure out or to analyze the result of a research but it is not applied to make an expand conclusion. In other words, descriptive research is a research focusing to the problems as they are during the research. It is descriptive due to its aims to get the explanation objectively.
Concept of Operationalization

According to Sugiyono (2012:31) definition of operational is to define a construct or a character to be studied so that it can be measurable variables. Definition of operational has described the method to be used to perform a research and to operate a construct, so that, other researchers can do replication of measurement using the same method or developing better construct measuring method.

Technique of Data Collection

Data collection method is a technique or a method to gather the data required by the researcher. There are some techniques or method of data collection which is usually applied by the researcher. The researcher can apply one or combination of the applicable method according to the problem happened (Kriyantono, 2010:93). This research has applied interview technique.

Interview is a communication for a certain intention. Interview has been done by both parties, interviewer is a person who offer some questions and interviewee which is a person who answers the question offered (Lincoln and Guba in Moleong, 2011:186). This research has applied open standard interview which is using standard questions. The question is using the same questions orderly, and the same method for each respondent.

Informant Selection

Informant or interviewee is someone who gives or knows the information clearly, or the information resources which is required by the research. The interviewees that are going to be interviewed are as the following:

1. Manager or the owner @elzattahijab as Key Informant for this research, and the main informant is the customer who has purchased the product using online shop @elzattahijab.
2. Manager or owner @zoyalovers as the Key Informant, and Main informant is the customer who has purchase the product using online shop @zoyalovers.
3. Manager or Owner @rabbaniprofesorkerudung as Key Informant and Main Informant is the customer who has purchased the product using online shop @rabbaniprofesorkerudung. Key Informant of this research is classified

Technique Data Analysis

In the technique data analysis, we are familiar with Triangulation term. Triangulation means a technique of data analysis which is combining various data collection technique taken from the available data resources (Sugiyono, 2009:423). Performing triangulation, the researcher has collected the data and data credibility test. In this research data resources collected are not only the owner of online shop, but also the customers who have been purchasing the product via online shop studied.

RESULT AND DESCRIPTION OF THE RESEARCH

Validity and Reliability of the Research.

1. Validity and Reliability of Qualitative Research.

Test Validity of the data of the research usually is only focusing on validity and reliability test. This research has had two kinds of research validity which is internal and external validity. Internal validity is about the accuracy degree of research design and the result achieved. External validity is about the accuracy degree whether the result of the research can be generalized or implemented on the population where the related samples has been taken.

It can be defined that in order to get valid and reliable data of quantitavie research

Restu Hazar and Resista Vikaliana. Analysis of the factors determining social media instgram as promotion media on the online shop in DKI Jakarta area is the research itself. But in a qualitative research, the data itself are to be tested. Therefore, Susan Stainback (1988) described that quantitative research has focused on reliability aspect, however, qualitative research has focused on validity aspect.

2. Test of Validity and Reliability of Qualitative Research

Data validity test of qualitative research is using credibility test. Test of credibility and reliability of the result of qualitative data can be done by using triangulation method.

That is why the writer will analyze the data of interview result using Triangulation method. Triangulation is multimethod approach which has been applied by the writer to collect and analyze the data. Fundamental idea is that the phenomena studied can be understood well, and, the extent to which the truth will be obtained when using varied perceptions approach.

Restu Hazar and Resista Vikaliana. Analysis of the factors determining social media Instagram as promotion media on the online shop in DKI Jakarta area.
Description

The factors which determine Instagram social media users as online promotion media is corresponding to the theory defined by Katz, Gurevitch, and Hass and the requirement type according to theory of Uses & Gratification which is: cognitive, affective, personal identity, social identity and entertainment, accessibility, relative cost and Life Style Envy.

Cognitive, Instagram is able to meet cognitive requirement of online seller which is knowledge requirement. Using Instagram, online sellers and online buyers have obtained the knowledge about how to sell their product by applying popular online media, online business, Instagram as media sharing lifestyle, and visual branding. Nevertheless, online seller could gain a knowledge from other online seller thru a certain account.

Affective, is the requirement about like, aesthetic, and experience. Trading in Instagram has got alot of experience either having alot of fun or disappointed. Having alot of fun when they have received many orders, smart buyers, etc. But having alot of disappointed circumstance is when they have been cheated, had impatient buyers, etc. Aesthetic experience either by online seller or online buyer happened when visual features and beautiful photos were placed neatly and attractive. The writer has figured out affective factor is one of the factors determining the decision to use Instagram social media as an online promotion media. Each photo or features of the product uploaded into Instagram using good camera and good result will attract the attention of customers and at the end they will purchase the products offered. The most satisfaction experience of online shop is when the customer shares good testimony about the product and the customers will repurchase the product and happy with the product they purchased.

Social identity, Instagram as social media basically is a media to connect one to another person. Online sellers assume that by using Instagram, they will be connected easily to online buyer. Besides that, Instagram has made online seller connect to online shop community which gathers reliable online shops that promote their products on the Instagram account. In this research, the writer has found out the social identity factor is one of the factors determining Instagram as promotion media which is online shop, they are dealing business with other online shop which offering varied product, such as spectacles, handbag, shoes where they are promoting their product on each online shop.

Entertainment, Instagram has fulfilled online seller requirement regarding entertainment (tension released). Instagram is applied not only selling the product, but also for the purpose of entertainment such as enjoying beautiful photos, however, people can stay longer opening Instagram to meet their entertainment need by scrolling timeline and opening photos gallery. It has happened due to content of photos uploaded in Instagram is varied which is about daily life photos, lifestyle, landscape view, holiday, and events.

Accessibility (easy to access). It is one of the factors why online sellers have taken Instagram due to accessibility to Instagram is very easy. Instagram is smartphone application which has been taken every day, so that to access Instagram is very easy and mobile. Instagram is also having the features such as catalogue to ease online buyer looking for the product they needed. It has made the products of online sellers reaching online buyers. This easy accessibility is acknowledged by online buyer.

Relative Cost/price. Cheaper cost/price is one of the factors for online sellers consideration to choose Instagram as their promotion media, according to them instead of free of charge, promotion in Instagram is more effective and efficient than using posters, billboards, radio even flyers. Using Instagram which is more effective and efficient and free of charge, they could allocate their budget for another purpose. The writer has found out that promotion in Instagram is cheaper, they only need a certain quota of internet, rather than using flyer. In order to attract the intention of customer, sometimes online shop has offered a special discount.

Lifestyle Envy. This circumstance is happened due to people comparing their life with others’ lifestyle in Instagram social media. Social media has broken down the separation wall between public figures (actors, artist, musician, etc) and the people, now, all the people can see closer the famous people lifestyle. Sometimes, social media has jeopardized the separation wall between celebrities and people, it has happened due to people can package their lifestyle on social media which has put them looking like celebrities. Instagram is able to make ordinary people to be looked like glamorous and expensive people which has made other people jealous. This research has not found out any Lifestyle envy of online sellers, because online sellers believe that their products are having selling value better than other online shops. But, Lifestyle envy has touched the customers or online buyers who have seen a lot about the glamorous and expensive lifestyle of the celebrities, so that they look for online shop that is selling the fashion which is similar to the celebrities’ fashion they are wearing.

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTIONS

Based on the result of research data processed, the writer has concluded “Analysis of Factors why Instagram social media users have applied Instagram as Promotion Media on Online shop” as follows:

1. There are 7 of 8 factors influencing Instagram social media users to use it as promotion media which is cognitive, affectives, personal identity, social identity, entertainment, accessibility and relative reasonable cost factors.
2. Lifestyle envy is not one of the factors influencing them to use it as promotion media on their online shop.
3. The researchers has figured out one factor influencing the online shop using Instagram as promotion media which is Insta Stories innovation features and live broadcast. These features are more seen by the customers due to the title of time line Instagram and it has made the online shop easy to promote their product more rapidly.

After having done the research, some suggestions are offered as follows:

1. The owner of online shop should promote their product by paying more attention to their pictures or photos uploaded and clear description about the price, size and colour. It is expected that online sellers are able to upload the photos which are in compliance with the actual product and detail of the products, so that online buyers will satisfy with the products they purchased.
2. Customers’ online shop should be more selective to purchase the product offered. They should be not only interested in the pictures, but also they have to be more accurate. So that, the customers will be satisfied receiving the products they purchased.
3. Further researchers should do a research using the variables of digital communication, media social, and online marketing. They can apply another method to get varied findings. And they are expected to be able to develop more communication science in digital marketing communication.
